

World Rhino Day

World Rhino Day : 22 September :-

World Rhino Day is observed annually on September 22. South African conservation organizations established World Rhino Day in 2010 to raise awareness about the critically endangered rhinoceros species. Lisa Jane Campbell expressed her hope to see at least five different species of rhinos living around the world in a letter she sent to Rhishja (another rhino enthusiast) in 2011. Since then, World Rhino Day has been observed annually to raise awareness of the critical need for rhino conservation as a result of the widespread poaching of rhinos for their precious horns.

Day for the Welfare of Cancer Patients : 22 September :-

The Welfare of Cancer Patients Day, also known as World Rose Day, is commemorated annually on September 22. The rose represents caring, love, and strength. The day is devoted to people suffering from cancer all across the world. The day celebrates Melinda Rose, a 12-year-old Canadian cancer sufferer who died in 1996. This day signifies raising awareness regarding the fight against the disease and encourages the sufferers to stay positive. This is an occasion to give cancer patients the hope to recover soon.

World Rivers Day 2024 : 22 September :-

World Rivers Day is observed every fourth Sunday in September, and this year's date is September 22. Mark Angelo, a globally recognized river conservationist, approached the United Nations in 2005 as part of its Water for Life campaign, a decade-long attempt to raise awareness about vulnerable water resources around the world. The first World Rivers Day was held in 2005, following the United Nations' announcement of the Water for Life Decade. The theme for World Rivers Day 2024 is "Waterways of Life".
